ALL EYES TURN TO RUSHVILLE

Democratic and Republican Politicians Will Center Their Attention on This City Friday.

WHEN W. J. BRYAN WILL SPEAK

Will be Significant, Due to Nebraskan's Stand in Favor of County Local Option.

The eyes of all of the politicians in the State of Indiana—Republicans and Democrats alike—will be centered on Rushville Friday afternoon, when William Jennings Bryan, erstwhile candidate for President on the Democratic ticket and also at one time a defeated candidate for the nomination for the same office on the same ticket, will speak at the Rush county chautauqua. The day will be a significant one in State politics as Mr. Bryan has not yet been invited to speak in the State this campaign by the Democratic State committee, due to the fact, so it is said, that the Commoner has taken on such a sudden activity in favor of county local option.

Mr. Bryan will not make a political speech here, that is, he is not advertised to talk along political lines. He is on the chautauqua program to deliver a lecture on the subject, "The Price of a Soul." But nevertheless, it is a matter of history that few politicians ever deliver a lecture on the chautauqua platform that they do not say something significant in regard to politics. Friday will be the first time that Mr. Bryan has spoken in Indiana since he has taken the stand on county option. The Indianapolis newspapers realize that men, prominent in political life, seldom, if ever, make an address that they do not bring in some place along the line their opinions in regard to the topic which is the leading one in their mind and have arranged to get a report of the speech.

The Republican party is the father of county local option in Indiana. Then it is very natural that the Democratic leaders would not be anxious for the Nebraskan to come here and make a speech favoring county local option. It is said that the Democratic State committee is averse to Bryan speaking here in the State on account of his attitude toward county option. It is said that the people in the ranks of the Anti-Saloon League are also awaiting Bryan's speech with interest on account of the opportunity which he may have to handle the temperance question. It is highly probable that Mr. Bryan will not disappoint the various interests which are preparing to hear something in regard to politics here Friday.

Some Republicans say the delay of the Democratic committee to invite Bryan to speak in this State for the Democrats is due to a fear that he might not handle the liquor question wisely. Bert Hendren, chairman of the speakers' bureau, said there was

REPORT SPREAD IS FALSE

Fifty Cents Will Not be Charged to Hear Bryan.

The report that is gaining broad circulation to the effect that the management of the chautauqua is going to charge fifty cents to hear William Jennings Bryan is false and without authoritative foundation. A season ticket to the chautauqua or a twenty-five cent single admission ticket will admit to any number of the program, regardless of who is on to instruct, entertain or lecture.

no significance in the fact that the invitation has not been sent to Bryan to speak here, according to the Indianapolis News.

"We have not opened up the speakers' bureau headquarters yet," he said. "And will not do so for about a week. No one has yet been invited to speak. There is plenty of time to invite Mr. Bryan."

With the interest that is centered into that particular address, it is probable that the largest crowd which ever attended any of the sessions of the chautauqua, will be here Friday afternoon to hear the popular orator. The management is expecting by far the biggest attendance which was ever had. Reports from all corners of the State lead the local people to believe that people will throng here from other cities to hear the Nebraskan politician. Bryan has a large following and many admirers who may avail themselves of what may be the only opportunity to hear him in the present campaign.

PRESENCE OF MIND AVERTS ACCIDENT

Ira Ayres Upsets His Wife in Wheel Chair to Keep Her From Being Struck by Backing Auto.

PROMOTERS PLAN PROTECTION

What might have been a serious accident was averted by rare presence of mind on the part of Ira Ayres at the chautauqua grounds last evening, when he upset his wife in her wheel chair to keep her from being struck by a backing automobile. Mr. Ayres with the assistance of Leonard Harback, who is visiting at the Ayres home, was pushing Mrs. Ayres up the small grade at the entrance to the chautauqua ground. Cecil Clark had preceded them up the roadway with a party of friends and had let them out at the chautauqua gate. Without warning he started to back the machine and Mr. Ayres seeing that serious results were inevitable upset his wife to avert them. She was slightly bruised about the knees from the fall, but that was all the injury she received. Great care should be exercised at the automobile gate to avert accidents and the chautauqua management plans to do all that is in their power to see that proper protection is given to the patronage.

THROW A BRICK AT ONE ANOTHER

Two Laborers Employed by Adams Construction Co. Quarrel Over Quality of Labor.

ONE MAN WAS DISMISSED

A Kentuckian employed by the Adams Construction company, who asserted that an Italian teamster who drives for the same company, was far from a good teamster, caused the self respect and self commendation to arise in the Italian and commanded the Kentuckian to close his face. Then the wrath of the Kentuckian was aroused and he asserted that he did not have to close his face. This remark led the Italian to pick up a Metropolitan paving brick and "slough" it at the man from the land of Bourbon. As quick as a flash the brick was started on a return trip and it found a terminal on the side of the Italian's head, but it brought him no great injury. Neither one of the men's correct names could be learned on investigation. As a result the Kentuckian was dismissed from the services of the construction company.

THRILLING ACTS AWE THE CROWDS

People Throng to City to See "Big Wednesday" Attractions Which Were Advertised.

STORES DO A BIG BUSINESS

Sensational Wire Walking, High Dive and Band Concert Are Features of Big Day.

Despite the fact that the chautauqua is in session the "Big Wednesday" crowds were as large as usual. People thronged the streets all afternoon and even before dinner a large number of people were in the city. With a double attraction, combining the chautauqua with the bargain day, it may be possible that more people came to the city than otherwise would have come.

The free attractions today were up to the standard and were the source of much amusement for the crowds. They were carried off according to schedule, although the high dive was late this morning and was postponed until directly after dinner. Prof. Artez made a daring leap from the top of a high ladder into a net below, on the old foundry lot shortly after the noon hour. He was slightly injured in the act when the net broke, but planned to do the turn again about five o'clock this evening.

Leo Earl, tight wire walker, was possibly the most sensational actor of the day. He walked a wire stretched from the top of the Social club building to the top of the Windsor hotel, both buildings being three stories high. He walked the wire this morning and again this afternoon. The act was especially thrilling, due to the fact that a mis-step on the part of the man would have meant certain death.

The merchants offered the usual bargains. All of the business houses were crowded all day with customers and the business men generally had a big day.

The crowds were entertained by the Andersonville band, which gave a continuous concert all day. They played new and popular airs and were applauded for their music. The usual evening concert by the city band will not be held on account of the chautauqua.

WENT THROUGH NET TO GROUND

High Diver Artez Has Narrow Escape From Serious Injury This Afternoon.

HE WAS SLIGHTLY BRUISED

High Diver Artez was uncertain for a second as to how far his dive at two o'clock this afternoon would take him. He had made a beautiful leap off his ninety-foot ladder and had lit correctly, but the cords of the net gave way and he went through to the ground. The large number of people, who had gathered to see the performance, were horror stricken for a moment, until they saw Artez get up and walk away. When asked if he was hurt he said "just kind had the wind knocked out of me and feel 'sorta' bruised up, but I'll try it again at five o'clock." He thinks the tension placed on the net was too great to stand the force of the acceleration he gained while passing through the air.

PRIEST TO TELL OF AMERICANS

Father J. M. Cleary, Orator and Platform Man, Will Lecture at Chautauqua Tonight.

FISHER-SHIP CO. PLEASES

Bryan Day, Friday, is Expected to Draw Biggest Crowd in History of Assembly Here.

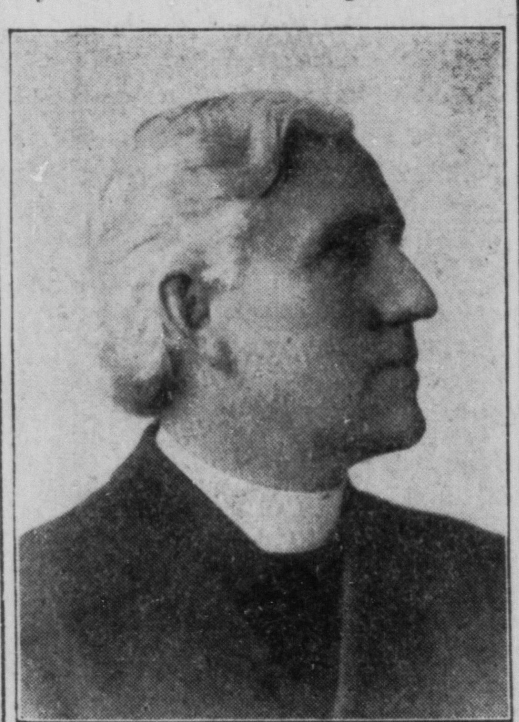

TONIGHT.

7:30 Musical Prelude—The Fisher-Shipp Co.
8:00 Lecture, "American Citizenship"—Father Cleary.

THURSDAY.

2:00 Prelude—The Fisher-Shipp Co.
3:00 Lecture Talk, "Popular Psychology"—Prof. Lindley.
3:30 Lecture Talk, "Domestic Science"—Prof. Calvin.
7:30 Musical Prelude—The Fisher-Shipp Co.
8:00 Lecture, "A Life Story"—Tahan.

Tonight Father J. M. Cleary on "American Citizenship," tomorrow night Tahan, the "White Indian," will give his life story and then the big day, when William Jennings Bryan will give his famous lecture on "The Price of a Soul." It is expected that will be the biggest day in the seven years history of the Rush county chautauqua. Indications point to a crowd that will not only fill the tent, but also the grounds of the city park. Bryan admirers from all parts of the

FATHER J. M. CLEARY
State are coming to hear the Commoner, who is conceded to be one of the biggest men on the lecture platform today. He will lecture in the afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

But tonight a man will appear before the audience at the chautauqua, who comes with a reputation that is really enviable. To say that he is the most eloquent priest in America means much since there are many great orators and brainy men who have donned the insignia of priesthood. He is not only a minister of the gospel, but he is an orator, lecturer and man of affairs. The Rev. Father Cleary has traveled much and with careful observations has a store house of knowledge that is to be envied. He has numerous subjects upon which he can lecture, including instructive as well as popular ones.

The Fisher-Shipp concert company met with popular approval in its first day entertainment. They will be here until tomorrow evening and will give the prelude before each program during that time. The Miss Alice Carey, violinist, was favored with rounds of applause after her numbers on the program yesterday. She appeared to the local music lovers as an artist of ability. Lloyd A. Loar, mandolin soloist, was also highly appreciated. The afternoon lecture courses continue, Prof. Lindley talking on some phase of "Popular Psychology" and Prof. Calvin on "Domestic Science." Prof. Calvin gives demonstrations in cooking with her lectures which are much enjoyed and are instructive. She gave a demonstration in candy making this morning to girls under twenty years of age.

The Waterloo, Iowa, Daily Courier says of the lecture which Father Cleary will deliver here tonight:

Before a large audience and on an ideal afternoon, Rev. Father Cleary delivered his lecture on "American Citizenship." This was a magnificent effort, full of eloquence and patriotism. American citizenship and all it conveys and means was painted in glowing colors. It was logical, the result of careful study, and showed a remarkable grasp on the principles which underlie our government. Some of the dangers threatening the American people were clearly shown, yet an optimistic view of America's greatness was taken.

RUSH COUNTY BOY GAINS

H. H. Sargent Taking Active Interest in Indianapolis Politics.

H. H. Sargent, a Rush county boy, who was born and reared in Carthage, is fast gaining prominence in Indianapolis, where he is engaged as a practicing attorney. He has an active interest in politics and is this year acting as chairman of the Republican speakers committee. Mr. Sargent was here yesterday on legal business and has visited here on numerous occasions.

Charles Shuppert of Near Milroy Throws Rocks Through Window of a Greensburg Home.

PAYS FINE IN MAYOR'S COURT

Whenever Charles Shuppert, an employe of the Reed & Thompson camp near Milroy, gets good and angry, he throws not a fit, but rocks, good old fashioned rocks, cobble stones or whatever you are in mind to call them, says the Greensburg News. And he generally throws them through glass windows. He became angry while on a visit to this city last evening and because he was not invited into the home of Mrs. Joe Rapalee on Railroad street, where festivities were in session, he threw rocks, shied them through a window of the parlor. Shuppert pleaded guilty before Mayor Mendenhall on Tuesday at 9 o'clock and paid something like $12 for his indiscretion.

TWO TRUSTEES GET INTO GLARE

Chester D. Rhodes of Center Township Says he Has Been Notified of a Shortage of $405.

NOT PUBLISHED IN PAPERS

W. A. Lord, Former Trustee Gets "Written Up," Charged With $2,053.60.

Edward P. Brennan and Charles W. Sutton, field examiners, who worked here for several months on the reports of present and former trustees, have broken into the limelight again. They have charged one former trustee in this county, who was elected on the Republican ticket in 1904, with a shortage of $2,053.60, while they charge the present trustee of the same township, a Democrat, with only a shortage of thirteen dollars, when he openly said here yesterday that he had been notified that he was short $405.

The present trustee is Chester D. Rhodes of Center township. He told an attorney here yesterday that he had received word that he owed the township four hundred and five dollars, while it was published here yesterday that Rhodes had been given a clean bill. The Indianapolis Star said Sunday that the examiners had charged Rhodes with a shortage of thirteen dollars, but did not mention the other $192. The present trustee said yesterday that the items of his shortage were ten dollars for overpayment to the advisory board, three dollars for storage of the voting paraphernalia and $192 paid out for sheep and cattle which had been killed by dogs, when the proper affidavits had not been made or had not been made in time as provided by law.

The Indianapolis News gave considerable space to the alleged shortages of W. A. Lord, trustee of Center township from 1905 to 1908. Alleged excess payments on school supplies it is believed may provide grounds for a charge of $568.67, while the total amount against Lord is $2,053.60. The story goes into detail, explaining where Mr. Lord bought the school supplies and gives the excess in each case. In arriving at the alleged excess, the examiners claim that they compared the price paid for the supplies with the catalogue, the difference being the alleged excess.

The shortage charged against Lord aside from the alleged excess in the prices includes the following items.

Failure to charge himself with borrowed money, $188.05; duplicate credits, $61.64; excess payments to various individuals, including teachers, $71.50; paid for supplies in the furnishing of which he was held by the examiners to be directly or indirectly interested as a seller, $464.91; credits on annual settlements not authorized, $150; paid for working out road tax, $62.06; paid on alleged illegal claims for stock damaged or killed by dogs, $467; paid wife for office rent and furniture, $78.

The charges for the payment of money for animals killed by dogs in the township where the proper affidavits have not been made out, have been made against trustees all over the State, including some in this county. One of the items against Mr. Lord is for that thing. Yet the field examiners do not make public the $192 shortage against Mr. Rhodes through the newspapers although he has been notified of the same.

Racing Is Still Popular

One most encouraging feature of this season has been the large attendance, record-breaking crowds being present at the half-mile and the mile track meetings, says the Western Horseman. This is proof that the light harness horse has a firm hold on the affections of the American people, for despite the fact that the average race meeting is managed with a view to please the horsemen and the speculators and with little attention to the wishes of the spectators, the public insists in turning out by the thousands to see the fast ones race.

It is greatly to the credit of the management at Grand Rapids and Kalamazoo, especially at the former place, that more attention was paid this year to what would please the public than has been the case at many large meetings in former years. There is no excuse for delaying the heats for the purpose of allowing the speculators to get on their money, for, as a matter of fact, speculation is more brisk and a greater volume goes into the box when the time is limited. In the last analysis speculation is a side issue, and under no consideration should that feature be allowed to interfere with the sport itself. The wise manager will let the privileged men look after themselves, while he devotes all of his time to seeing that the spectators are made comfortable after giving instructions to the officials in the stand to see that the racing is conducted strictly according to the rules. Having done this he will find that he is conducting a profitable meeting, providing, of course, he has the usual run of good horses and the latter will be on hand if the purses are attractive and the conditions liberal.

Despite the fact that there are more automobile races this year than ever before they have not detracted in the least from the popularity of the trotter and pacer, and there is no reason to believe that they will. There is an element of danger in auto races that will attract for a few times, but those who wish to see real racing will never be content with the kind of sport furnished by mere machines, no matter how fast they may go, for the excitement caused by genuine contests is lacking. While the attendance at light harness race meetings is larger this year than ever in the long history of the sport, and our reports from all sections of the country show this to be the case, the owners of the automobile race track in Indianapolis, in many respects the greatest in the country, have discharged their manager on the plea of economy. This track is hardly more than a year old, and its meetings have been conducted with a flourish of trumpets that would cause the uninitiated to believe that the public was interested in this track to the exclusion of all other racing events. Yet just at the time when it would be natural to suppose that a master hand should be at the helm comes the announcement that the manager has been discharged in order that his salary may be saved.

Comparisons are always odious, but owing to the fact that certain daily papers have hailed the extinction of the horse because of the perfection attained in the manufacture of the machines, it is well to call attention to the true facts in the case. Breeders have no reason to be discouraged. Really they have every right to go on and increase their operations, for the light harness horse was never so popular as today. The demand is so great that prices are extremely high for every kind of horse, while there are scores of wealthy men ready to pay fancy prices for good trotters and pacers having a chance to make good in their class. The outlook for the breeder and the race track manager was never so bright as at the present time.

Great Pacers to be at State Fair

Five of the world's greatest pacers all of them belonging to M. W. Savage of Minneapolis, will make up the chief attraction in the speed department at the Indiana State Fair. This list of turf stars is headed by the championship of champions, Dan Patch, whose record of 1:55 has never been equaled and with him will be Minor Heir, 1:59 1/4; Hedgewood Boy, 2:02 1/4; Lady Maud C., 2:03 3/4. Dan Patch will never again be started against time, but he will be on exhibition at the Indiana fair.

The other Savage horses, however, will show their speed on different occasions at the fair. On Monday the four will race against each other. During the week Hedgewood Boy and Lady Maud C. will race against Minor Heir and George Gano, the two teams being hitched to wagons. On one afternoon of the fair Minor Heir, with a running pacemaker, will attempt to lower the world's mile record. Minor Heir is now the racing sensation of the racing world.

Dan Patch will at the fair have a stall in the big brick barn, where his apartment will be highly decorated with the trophies he has won. He will frequently be jogged on the racecourse for the crowds to see him in action. He has won enough fame to retire from the racecourse, and for ten years has been without a peer in the harness world. In manners, disposition, in courage, gameness and speed he has stood alone, and is the recognized standard of harness horse perfection. He has paced 73 miles under two minutes, lowered the world's record fourteen times, and now holds seven world's records, and he is to today in superb physical condition.

Minor Heir seems destined to take Dan Patch's place in the realm of pacers. Two years ago he was unknown—today Minor Heir is admitted by most experts to have the greatest flights of speed of any horse ever trained, with the possible exception of Dan Patch. Minor Heir's chances of setting a world's mark at the Indiana Fair is regarded as exceptionally good.

Hedgewood Boy has this season been showing more remarkable speed qualities than ever, and Lady Maud C. and George Gano are in fine fettle.

Oh, You Cucumber

"Copy" was evidently slow in coming to Lebanon the other day and the editor of the Reporter indulged in a "tribute" to the cucumber which is used with apologies.

You know this is the best of year when the death-dealing cucumber is abroad in the land seeking whom it may double up and make sad. When a man goes home in the evening after a hard day's work he finds that he is the proud possessor of an appetite like a self-binder, and when he sits down to the table and sets before him the first cucumbers of the season, he can hardly wait until he gets a quantity stored away under his baseball belt. Under this belt said cucumbers quietly lay in wait until the eater has gone to sleep for the night. Then they get up on their feet, unbutton their vests, roll back their sleeves and proceed to business. At first they attack the sleeper only in dreams that some one has hit him in the vitals with a baseball bat, but the cucumbers rapidly get warmed up and the victim's agonies increase. His dreams become more picturesque and he begins to snort and fume and then telephone some doctor to bring a full-grown stomach pump. At last long about day-break the fire department appears on the scene and joins the terechorean exercise. When the sleeper awakens in the morning the first thing he does is to feel his stomach to see if he is there, also the cucumbers which the night before sat up and smiled innocently at him. There are lots of people who are harvested before they are ripe simply because they absorb much more cucumbers into their anatomy than their digestive apparatus can cope with.

Advise Short Honeymoon

Sensible girls whose positions when married will be a comfortable middle-class one, will be well advised not to indulge in a long honeymoon. The ideal wedding tour should be short, quiet and not expensive. There are many comfortable hostleries in the quiet beauty spots where a young couple can enjoy each other's society undisturbed by the quizzing glances usually leveled at a nervous bride when she makes her appearance at a crowded table d'hôte says Home Notes. A wise bishop said: "As long honeymoons * * * they are a waste of money at a moment when a shilling is wanted for much more pressing objects; they are a loss of time; which soon comes to be dreary and weary. Six days by all means, and then, oh, happy friends, go straight home; the sooner you are at home the sooner you will find out what married happiness means."

Here's the Proof

For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin, until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly, until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is now fairly covered with hair and it keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.

Slick Game is An Old One

Not that all persons who go about the country renovating feather beds and pillows are fakery in this article printed, but merely to show the smooth, yet moss worn game that was worked on grandfathers and is being worked on the generation today.

The solicitor calls at the door and in polite language requests to see the lady of the house. He is there on a mission of business, the kind of business that she alone is interested in and by his smooth talk soon gains an audience. He is prepared to tell her that there is moth maggots in her feather beds, cushions and pillows and he can prove it.

The lady is astonished to be sure for she always dreamed that her feathers were absolutely clean and she rather resents the impertinence of this smooth, slick stranger who presumes to know so much. Yes she will submit to his examining the feathers for she is positive that he is mistaken and she watches with some glee for his discomfort.

But poor soul, she is bound to bitter disappointment. There is certainly no moth maggots in her feathers, but the smooth stranger puts them there. Quicker than the eye he slips several from a small phial in his hand into the few feather he pulls from the incision in the tick he has made, and to the astonished housewife he proudly exhibits them. Nine times out of ten she falls to his game, for he was so rapid in his movements that she never dreams that the man had the maggots concealed in his hand all the time. Naturally the solicitor gets the order. He takes away her feathers, shakes them up a little while in the vacant house which he has temporarily rented and brings them back in a day or so as clean as they were when he got them.

In this way the public is gulled by the thousands each year. Readers of this article should not believe that feathers ought never to be renovated. They should be, but it is a positive fact that there will be few moth maggots in the feathers without the housewife knowing it, for when they are there they are constantly busy and the feathers disappear as if by magic as they consume them.

Charm Snake With Song

Singing "Nearer My God to Thee," three women charmed a rattlesnake which had just crawled from beneath a cushion upon which one of them was seated out on the Vale Ranch, near San Bernadino, Cal.

Mrs. F. P. Dunlap, Mrs. Harry Allison and Mrs. W. A. Vale were seated on a lounge under the trees when Mrs. Dunlap perceived the snakes. Instantly she thought of music charming reptiles and she whispered, "Let's sing."

She began to hum the sacred air and the others not knowing why, took it up. The snake, with head poised, paused and Mrs. Dunlap slowly arose and beckoned the others to follow, which they quietly did.

After having gained a safe distance the others discovered what their danger had been. Armed with clubs the women then killed the snake.

TELLS OF WHEAT TRAIN'S COMING

Purdue University Sends Out Information Concerning Train to Visit This County.

DATE IS NOT YET ANNOUNCED

Object is to Stimulate Wheat Growing
And to Disseminate Information.

As has been announced in this paper, a wheat improvement special will be run over the Pennsylvania Lines for the benefit of the farmers. Definite announcement concerning the schedule has not yet been made, but the following communication from Purdue University will be of interest:

A wheat improvement special train will be run August 22 to September 7 over the Pennsylvania Lines in Indiana. The train is equipped and run free by the railroad company, while the lecturers, demonstration materials and literature are furnished by the Purdue Experiment Station.

The object of this train are to stimulate interest in wheat growing in Indiana and to disseminate information relative to selection of varieties, cultural methods, fertilization, control of plant diseases, and methods of combatting injurious insects. That this campaign for more and better wheat is needed is readily seen from a study of present existing condition. The average yield of wheat in Indiana is 13.3 bushels per acre. The cost of producing an acre of wheat in Indiana is more than twelve dollars ($12.00.) The profit is therefore very small.

The Experiment Station believes that the average yield of wheat of the State should be materially increased, or farmers should stop growing wheat and grow some crop that will return a substantial profit.

Just what the Experiment Station believes can be done to increase the yield and improve the quality of wheat will be presented in the lectures given on the train and the literature distributed. Arrange to meet this train and study the work being done.

Those wishing schedule or other information should apply to agents of Pennsylvania Lines or G. I. Cristie, Supt. Agricultural Extension, Purdue Experiment Station, Lafayette, Ind.

Which Will be Seen For First Time at Dayton Festival.

Dayton, O., August 10, (special) Dayton, Ohio, made a ten-strike when it got the Wright Brothers for a series of flights in their new aeroplanes during the Fall Festival to be held there the week of September 19. This will be the first time that the public will see the improved machines having wheels form which to start and which have a single rudder in front. This decreases the weight and cuts out the starting back. Festival week will be the greatest that Dayton has ever known and thousands will flock there to see the new aeroplanes as well as to see Roosevelt, Toft, Harmon and the other notables. There will be daily parades of a gorgeous brilliancy, a Venetian carnival, a wonderful hippodrome show and a thousand other free attractions. Dayton has set out to outdo all previous efforts in the Festival line.

MR. GAYNOR HAS A GOOD CHANCE

Would-be Assassin's Shot May Not Prove Fatal.

PREPARED FOR A GRIM FIGHT

Knowing the Difficult Trial He is Facing, New York's Chief Executive is Directing His Forces of Body to Overcome Complications Which May Follow Ugly Wound Caused by Discharged Dock Hand.

New York, Aug. 10.—Mr. Gaynor is doing as well as could be expected. He is perfectly conscious and has no temperature or evidence of infection. He slept naturally most of last night and has a fine pulse.

New York, August 10.—Mayor Wm. J. Gaynor lies in St. Mary's hospital, Hoboken, where the bullet of James J. Gallagher sent him yesterday, with his chances for life about evenly balanced. No good and definite word except that of hope can come from the doctors who are at his bedside until the passage of hours brings before their eyes evidence of the struggle between their patient's vitality and the inroads of septicemia. The mayor is not suffering greatly at present. He has not lost consciousness since Gallagher's revolver was discharged into the back of his neck on the promenade deck of the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse. He is keenly alive to the nature of the trial that he faces. Insisting that the doctors should tell him just how the score between himself and death stood, Mayor Gaynor heard their report and seemed satisfied. He knows that he must match his strength against that of death and that the issue grows tenser with the passing of the hours.

The wound he received from the revolver of the frenzied political hanger-on is serious. The bullet entered Mayor Gaynor's neck from behind, a little to the right of the vertebrae and below the line of the ear, ranging downward and forward and lodged in a position near the base of the tongue.

As for Gallagher, the faded little man with the shoulders of a bull and all the insolence of past years of experience on the fringe of political swamps in his eyes, he humps himself and sneers when told that the mayor of New York is not dead as the result of his deed. He puffs on his pipe in his cell at the Hudson county jail in Jersey City, where he is immured without bail to await the action of the grand jury, and says: "Well, I'm sorry I did not kill him right off. I hope he croaks. I had to get him and if I did not really get him, that's not my fault."

With Terrible Suddenness.

The shooting of the mayor came with terrible suddenness. He was standing on the deck of the ship which was to take him to Europe and a month's rest and vacation. About him were many members of his official family, there to bid him Godspeed. President Pedro Montt of Chile, who was to be his fellow passenger, had not half a minute before gripped the mayor's hand in a friendly salutation and the distinguished South American executive was where the smoke cloud from Gallagher's gun swept across his face.

Mayor Gaynor was just in the middle of a little passage at repartee with Dr. Ernst G. Lederle, his head of the department of health. He had extended his hand to poke the commissioner playfully in the ribs. Then came the shot—a hand-to-hand struggle between some of the mayor's subordinates and the assassin there on the deck of the ship, more shots sounding above the noise of half-choked oaths and the trample of feet, shrieks from the passengers that crowded the rails at the business of waving farewells, the bellying of orders in raucous German, by deck officers of the liner.

All of that within the compass of a half minute. Then there was the mayor of New York still standing on his feet, but grievously wounded, the victim of a man who tried to do murder. And there on the deck at his feet this Gallagher, writhing in the grip of steel muscles that clasped his wrists and snapping his jaws at the feet and hands of the men who sat on him.

Shot in Midst of Joke.

The mayor had taken up a small detail of official business with Dr. Lederle, at first in a serious tone and then finishing in banter. He reached a playful hand out and poked Dr. Lederle gingerly in the ribs.

Just at that instant a hand reached up from behind Mayor Gaynor's back and the muzzle of a short bulldog revolver was placed against his neck. There was a report.

"You've stolen my bread and butter, damn you!"

These were the words that were bawled over the mayor's shoulder at the instant of the shot. For just a hair's breadth of time there was silence. One of the photographers who had levelled his camera before the shot to catch the mayor's farewell smile, clicked his shutter by the involuntary reaction that tugged his finger. Then a cry from Robert Adamson, the mayor's private secretary: "O God, he's shot the mayor!"

Each of the men standing about the mayor wheeled and saw Gallagher standing there with his arm just lifting with the movement of cocking his revolver again. Adamson jumped squarely at him and threw up the revolver hand. Just as he did so the weapon exploded and the bullet went whistling over the roof of the steamer shed.

Commissioner "Big Bill" Edwards launched his tremendous bulk full at the stunted figure which was wrestling with Adamson. Ralph Blומר, Edwards's lieutenant, who used to play football at Yale, jumped forward.

"Want any help, Bill?" he cried. "Sure, sit on his head," panted the big commissioner. "He's strong as an ox."

Just then another shot sounded. Gallagher had twitched his pistol hand around under the grip Adamson had put on it and he flicked the trigger in blind chance. The bullet tore through the left coat sleeve of Commissioner Edwards, seared the biceps of that arm in a long welt and buried itself in the boards of the deck twenty feet away. Gallagher cursed in broken breaths.

It was then that Corporation Counsel Watson took a hand. He stepped with all of his weight on Gallagher's right wrist, then bent over and wrenched the revolver from his hand.

Commissioner Edwards grunted out a command for someone to bring him some handcuffs. Henry Gording, a special officer of the steamship company, pulled a pair of little steel nippers out of his pocket and handed them to Edwards, who snapped the handcuffs first on one wrist, then on the other. Even as he did so Gallagher tried to bite him and he wagged his head from side to side, snapping at the ankles of the men about him.

Victim Did Not Fall.

When the shot was fired into his neck Mayor Gaynor staggered slightly, then straightened up with a visible effort and tensed his lips with pain. Dr. Lederle wadded a handkerchief against the wound in the neck, blackened by the powder and spurring blood. Adamson, who had risen to his feet when Edwards had Gallagher secure, ran to the mayor's side, the tears streaming from his eyes under the spur of excitement.

"Who did it, Adamson, who did it?" asked the mayor in a weak voice. Adamson tried to answer that he had only caught a glimpse of the assailant and did not know. Still the mayor stood and Lederle kept the handkerchief against the wound. Dr. Smith of Brooklyn, a friend who had been among the party to give Gaynor Godspeed, pushed his way through the crowd and stepped to the mayor's side. He looked hurriedly at the wound and then motioned to those who were about the stricken man that they should carry him to a stateroom, where the mayor was stretched out on his berth. Rufus Gaynor, the mayor's son, who had been standing on the opposite side of the boat when the shooting occurred and who had thus been spared the spectacle, came running into the stateroom, faltering broken sentences of query and despair. The mayor put his hand out on the young man's head and patted it. "All right—all right," he whispered.

Dr. Strauch, the steamer's chief surgeon, carefully examined the wound in the back of the mayor's neck and, glancing in a satisfied way toward his assistant, he muttered in German: "Tis good. No arteries cut."

"You will have to go to the hospital, Mayor Gaynor," said Dr. Strauch. Mr. Gaynor shook his head in a movement of dissent.

"I wish to continue the voyage," said he, brokenly.

"I, also, Mr. Gaynor," said the surgeon, "but I will not be responsible for you on the ship. You must leave. It is a question of saving your life." The trip to the hospital was made as swiftly as the rough cobbles of the street would allow. During the trip to St. Mary's Mayor Gaynor said nothing, his lips moved two or three times, but no sound issued from them. He remained fully conscious.

What Caused the Shooting.

Gallagher began work on the dock as night watchman to look after sand piles along the river front, ten years ago. He was recently discharged for repeated negligence to sign and "punch" a time clock every hour on the hour. He had called several times at the mayor's office seeking a word that would secure his reinstatement, and had also written to the mayor in regard to his case. In Gallagher's possession was found a letter which probably was the direct incentive for the shooting. It is dated Aug. 4, at the mayor's office and is addressed to Gallagher. It reads:

"Dear Sir—The mayor has instructed me to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 1st inst., and to state that he can do nothing for you in the matter in which you write."

The letter is signed by Secretary Robert Adamson.

Gallagher is a widower, fifty-eight years of age. He was born in Belfast, Ireland, and came to this country when a boy.

GORE INTRODUCES ANOTHER TELEGRAM

This Refers to Mr. Sherman in the McMurray Case.

McAlester, Okla., Aug. 10.—Senator T. P. Gore, at the congressional investigation of the Indian land deals, introduced and had read to the investigating committee telegrams in which the names of Vice President Sherman and Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas were named. One of the telegrams read:

"With McMurray there to state our claims, with Mr. Curtis and Mr. Sherman, who understand better than anybody else what we want, and with the assistance of our president, it begins to look like we are coming into our own."

This telegram was dated at Kinta, Okla., May 2 last, and was sent to Richard C. Adams, an attorney at Washington, by George W. Scott, J. F. McMurray's agent among the Indians.

Its relation to Senator Gore's charges of having received an offer of a $25,000 bribe to "put through" congress the $30,000,000 McMurray Indian land deal was explained by the senator:

"It merely shows the activity of the McMurray interests at Washington," said Senator Gore.

An Expert's Opinion of Skin Disease.

A prominent, national expert on skin diseases whose name you are familiar with says that in all his scientific experience he has never found so hard a disease to conquer as Eczema. Yet he does not hesitate to recommend ZEMO as a most successful remedy for the treatment of Eczema, itching skin disease, dandruff, pimples, blackheads and all other diseases of the skin and scalp. He says that not only do its curative qualities make it popular but also the fact that it is a clean, liquid remedy for external use. A great improvement over the old style greasy salves and lotions which are not only unpleasant to use but do not destroy the germ life that causes the disease. ZEMO draws the germs to the surface and destroys them, leaving the skin clear and healthy. Can be used freely on infants. Mr. F. E. Wolcott will gladly supply those who call with a free sample bottle of ZEMO and a booklet which explains in simple language all about skin disease and how to cure yourself at home with ZEMO.

Democrats certainly do "shout," as Stokes Jackson says. And it is frequently the case that the words they utter are not fit to send through the mails.

When men like James P. Goodrich can spare time from business to engage in practical organization work for the Republican party cause, and on behalf of good government, it follows that other citizens well may study their duty and go and do likewise.

The investigation of the bribery charges does not vindicate Senator Gore very much. It seems to have been the purpose of the senator to involve Vice President Sherman, and that without one shred of evidence. Mr. Sherman may have his faults, but unless Senator Gore can offer some proof of the vice president's complicity in this affair it is bound to prove a boomerang to the originator.

One or two near accidents on the chautauqua grounds, caused by the movements of automobiles, clearly demonstrates that a policeman ought to be stationed there to manage and regulate the entry and exit of the machines. An automobile is a very large vehicle and it requires some skill and caution to run one in and out of close quarters. Drivers of automobiles should never back their machines in crowded places without first looking back and warning people to get out of the way.

Congressman E. D. Crumpacker, dean of the Indiana congressional delegation, has been signally honored by Republicans of Indiana in the last few days. Mr. Crumpacker has been put forward by the Republican nominees for congress in Indiana, as their candidate and choice for speaker of the next house of representatives. This tribute is deserved. Mr. Crumpacker is a clean, fine, able, independent and zealous legislator, whose experience has been practical, varied and extensive. He is a hard worker, and is efficient to a remarkable degree. He has been mentioned frequently as a prominent speakership quantity. Indiana voters will be glad to further the movement to put him in the chair of the national house.

On the subject of pensions the Republican State platform says: "We favor just and liberal pensions to all deserving soldiers and to the widows and orphans of those who are dead. Every general pension law now on the statute books was placed there by a Republican congress. We believe the time has come for the enactment of what is known as the dollar-a-day pension plan for the relief of the necessities of civil war veterans."

Commenting on John B. Stoll's statement that John W. Kern's charges of bribery and fraud in the Democratic legislative caucus of 1909 resulted from a "slip of the tongue," the Columbia City Commercial Mail says: "This talk sounds like Stoll the politician and not like Stoll the private citizen." And it is safe to assert that Mr. Stoll will not be found teaching the same doctrine in his newspaper that he promulgated in his Indianapolis News interview.

In order to obtain publication all persons sending news items to the Daily Republican should sign their names to the same. Many items are unsigned and for that reason if there is any suspicion as to the correctness of them, the management feels warranted in cutting them out. The management of the Daily Republican wants news by phone and mail, but in order that it may be ascertained who is authority for the news, it is required that names be signed. Most of the news sent to the office is alright, but occasionally misrepresentations are sent which offend some one. We want all the news and are glad to get it but we want it correct.

If an item of news is alright, it will not hurt anyone to sign their name. The name will not be printed, it only serves as a guarantee that the item is not erroneous.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

HOBBLE SKIRTS PERILOUS.

(Indianapolis Star.)

When women wear skirts gathered into a band or "hobble" just below the knees they should expect things to happen, and they are happening. Reports are coming in from all directions of accidents to the wearers of these garments. The women forget the hobbling and start to run, or to get in or out of a carriage or street car, or to take a long step, and down they go on the ground. Walking in trousers with but one leg would seem to require some practice, and the ladies have neglected this.

TUNING UP FOR LAST AUTO MEET

Racing Season Closes at Indianapolis

Famous Brick Speedway Course

Sept. 3 to 5.

ENTRIES ARE NOW BEING MADE

The Program Includes 20 Races For

Which Money and Trophies Valued at $10,000 Are Offered.

Drivers and racing cars are tuning up at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, preparatory to the automobile races September 3 and 5, which will mark the close of the motor car season at the brick course, the last event being the national balloon meet on September 17. Entries for the motor races are reaching the speedway management in such quantities as to indicate that it will be the most important series of events given here, and now, that many of the more courageous drivers are familiar with the brick track, a familiarity gained at former meets, some sensational records are anticipated.

It is expected that a number of the daring foreign drivers will drive famous European machines in the September meet. The foreigners, coming from France, Germany, Italy and England, will participate in the Eastern races later in the fall, and they have indicated a desire to reach America in time to enter the Indianapolis contests.

The program for the two days includes twenty races for which money prizes and trophies worth $10,000 are offered. The Speedway management is anxious to give its track first place as a mile record holder, and to induce the drivers to make an earnest effort to cut down the time on this course below the present point of 35.63, special inducements are offered for mile trials on September 3. If a fraction is shaved off the present record, the driver who does it will receive $200.00. If the mark is lowered one second, he will receive $300.00, and $500.00 will be given for a reduction of two seconds. Free-for-alls, handicaps, numerous classes for stock classis and regular racing motors will be given, and among the long distance events are 100 and 200 mile races. Two of the choicer prizes offered to drivers are the Speedway Helmet worth $50.00 a week to the winner, and the Remy Grand Brassard worth $75.00 a week and among the rich trophies is the Remy, worth $2,500, which goes to the owner of the winning car. A number of gold and silver medals will also be awarded.

The Indianapolis Speedway, on which $75,000 has been spent, is now complete. The brick track is regarded among drivers, as the best that has yet been constructed. The covered seating capacity of the amphitheaters has been largely increased, and the grounds are very attractive in appearance.

GOES TO SHELBYVILLE.

(Shelbyville Democrat.)

That the officers of the Bell Smokeless Powder Company, of St. Paul, intend to carry into effect as soon as possible the announcement made Saturday that they would locate their shell loading plant in Shelbyville, was attested to by developments that took place today. Dr. Pagel, secretary of the concern authorized the Democrat to state that ground would be broken tomorrow for the building, which will be located in the industrial addition. Architect Swartz will arrive in Shelbyville tomorrow and will supervise the erection of the structure.

Dr. Pagel spent the day making a canvass of the business men of the city and he stated at 3 o'clock this afternoon that he had met with excellent success in selling stock in the company. Sufficient stock has been subscribed to put the company on a firm financial basis. Another announcement which will be greeted with a generous note of approval by his many friends in this city is that Dr. Pagel and family will move to this city for permanent residence. In conversation with friends today Dr. Pagel said that he had always wanted to live in Shelbyville, but that the notion never struck him as it had today.

The physician will divide his time between looking after his practice and overseeing the shell loading plant. As stated in this paper Saturday, the plant will give employment to about fifty persons when it is running at its full capacity. But the promoters believe there are great things in store for the company in the future. The officers and leading stockholders are so thoroughly imbued with this idea that they have invested several thousand dollars and will invest several thousand more in the next few months before the plant begins operation.

HAVE USED OIL IN GREAT QUANTITIES

Thirteen Thousand Gallons Have Already Been Placed on Streets of This City.

7,000 GALLONS COMES TODAY

Rushville ought to be a pretty smooth running city, for within the last three weeks 13,000 gallons of crude oil has been placed on the street to prevent dust. C. E. Davis, who is doing the oiling, expects another tank car of oil today, which will contain 7,000 gallons, with which he expects to complete his contracts. If any of the residents of the city wish to have the highways in front of their property oiled they had better see Mr. Davis immediately, for with the 7,000 gallons that he expects today he intends to complete his work here. 20,000 gallons of oil ought to aid materially in making this city dustless.

SOCIETY NEWS

There is to be a dance at the Modern Woodmen hall on Thursday night, August eighteenth. Many out-of-town guests are expected to attend.

Miss Hazel Morris was hostess yesterday to a small company of friends at her home near Glenwood, honoring Miss Ina Stewart of Wamego, Kansas.

Goshen Democrat: Mrs. W. R. Coverston will entertain at bridge tonight for her guest, Mrs. C. B. Lore of Rushville.

Miss Versie Higgs entertained at dinner last evening in honor of Miss Florine Boyle.

Mrs. Bert Mullin will entertain the Utopia club at her home in North Perkins street tomorrow afternoon.

AMUSEMENTS

The Vaudet management will offer a good program tonight in the film, "Lost For Many Years." It is a Bison film, a drama which depicts a story intensely human. It evolves about an incident which is taken from real life. A new illustrated song will be sung.

The Palace will show a Selig film tonight, "The Phoenix" is a drama with a clever plot telling a story of much worth. "Mazeppa" is a story, the scenes of which are laid in Poland. It is a story of the Kings and queens, depicted by the moving picture is a thrilling manner. The infant son of the Tartar chief is captured while a babe and grows into manhood in the Polish land. The trouble which he encounters and the romantic love affair in which he is one of the principals is entertaining. It is said to be one of the best pictures ever shown her. A new illustrated song.

The Girl and the Bill

By Bannister Merwin

Illustrations by Ray Walton

(Copyright, 1900, Dodd, Mead Company.)

What was going on was more than ever a mystery to Orme. The stranger's reference to "the next contract" strengthened the surmise that the documents in the envelope were connected with a South American trade concession. Alcatrante had plainly concluded that his interests and those of the Japanese were identical. He must have communicated with the strange Japanese the first thing in the morning. That would account for his failure to call at the Pere Marquette at ten o'clock. Learning that the bill had been taken from Orme, and that the coveted documents were in the possession of the Japanese, he had no object in keeping his appointment. As for Poritol, he had become a figure of minor importance.

But Orme did not let these questions long engage him, for he had made a discovery. Where his head bumped against the table, the board above him—solid, as he had supposed—rattled strangely. At the moment he could not investigate, but as soon as the cat had satisfied the suspicions of Poritol, and Alcatrante and the stranger had retired to their corner, he twisted his head back and examined the wood above him.

The table had a drawer. From the room outside this drawer was concealed by the cloth cover, and Orme had not suspected its existence.

Now, the table was cheaply made. The drawer was shallow and narrow, and it was held in position, under the table, by an open framework of wood. When it was pushed in, it was stopped at the right place by two cleats; there was no solid strip to prevent its being pushed in too far.

Orme put his hand to the back of the drawer. There was a space between it and the table-top.

Cautiously he pushed his hand through the opening. His fingers touched a flat object—a pad of paper, or—the thought made his heart beat—a large, thick envelope. Could Arima have used the drawer as a hiding place?

Slowly he got the edge of the object between his first and second fingers and drew it a little way toward the back of the drawer. A moment later he had it under his eyes.

Yes, it was a long envelope of heavy linen, and there were bulky papers within. The gummed flap was toward him. He was interested to note that, important though the documents seemed to be, the envelope was not sealed with wax.

He remembered what the girl had said: her father's name was written on the address side. He had only to turn it over to learn who she was. In the circumstances such an act might be justified. But she had not wished him to know—and he would even now respect her wish and keep his own promise to her first.

His first thought was to slip the envelope into his pocket, but it occurred to him in time that, if it did indeed contain the documents concerning which Alcatrante and the stranger were disputing, it would be sought and missed long before he could escape from the room. So, taking a pencil from his pocket, he inserted it under the corner of the flap and slowly worked the flap free. The strength of the linen prevented any tearing.

He removed the contents of the envelope—two folded sheets of parchment paper, held together by an elastic band—and thrust them into the inside pocket of his coat. All this was done swiftly and noiselessly.

It now remained to find something to take the place of the abstracted documents. In his pocket were some printed prospectuses of the mine which he had come to Chicago to investigate. In shape and thickness they were not dissimilar to the documents which he had taken. He slipped the prospectuses into the envelope and, wetting his finger, rubbed it along the gummed surface of the flap. Enough glue remained to make the flap adhere, after a little pressure. The job was by no means perfect, but it was not likely to be detected.

At that moment Alcatrante raised his voice and said, still in French: "You are sure, then, that this will not delay the game, but end it?"

"Quite sure," said the Japanese. "Unless the documents are signed before midnight tonight nothing can be done for some time. We have the Germans fixed. They will do what they have thus far agreed to do, but if any technical hitch arises, such as a failure to sign within the time limit, they will decline to renew negotiations. That was all we could get from them, but it is enough—now."

"And for other ships," said Alcatrante, "the commission shall be five hundred thousand."

"Five hundred thousand. Seven hundred and fifty was too much."

"Five hundred thousand in gold."

"In gold," Orme slipped the envelope back into the drawer and put his eye to the hole in the cover. His position was now more critical, for to open the drawer and get the envelope Arima would have to lift the table cover.

The stranger turned to Arima. "Give us the envelope," he said.

Arima approached the table. Orme crowded back against the wall as far as he could, knowing that the chances of escaping discovery were strongly against him. But he was saved by the very eagerness of the others. They all crowded about Arima, as he lifted the cover, opened the drawer and took out the envelope. So close did they stand that Orme was out of their angle of vision. The table cover fell again, and he was safe. He resumed his position at the peep-hole.

The stranger stepped to the middle of the room, the others gathering around him. With a quick jerk he tore the envelope open, and taking out the papers, ran his eye over them rapidly. He uttered an exclamation. "What is it?" said Alcatrante. The South American's hand was shaking, and perspiration stood out on his forehead.

The Japanese snarled. "Tricked! They've fooled us. That honorable burglar of yours got the wrong envelope."

Alcatrante snatched the papers. "Prospectus," he read, "of the Last Dare Mining Company." But I do not understand."

The Japanese glared at him angrily. "If you had kept out of this business," he snapped, "and let Maku attend to it, everything would have been right. Now your burglars have spoiled it." He snatched back the harmless prospectuses and tore them in two, throwing the fragments to the floor and grinding them under his heel.

Arima spoke. "Pardon, honorable sir, Maku say the right envelope was taken from the safe. Maku know."

"Ha! Then it was you who were tricked—outwitted. That American reached the tree before you last evening and substituted these papers. Go back to Japan, Arima. I don't need you."

Arima bowed submissively. As for the stranger, his rage gave way to despair.

"What shall I say to the emperor?" he muttered. "What shall I say to the emperor?"

Then his feelings came again under control; he looked calmly at Alcatrante. "Well," he said, "what would you suggest?"

Alcatrante's face was a puzzle. Every shade of doubt, disappointment, anger, suspicion and shrewd deduction passed over it. He was putting into play that marvelous power of concentration on subtle issues that had enabled him to play so brilliantly the role of international under-dog. At last he smiled and spoke.

"Find the American," he said. "Suddenly there was a knock at the door. Arima looked at his master, who nodded indifferently and said: 'Yes, see who it is. It can do no harm now.'"

Orme heard the door open. What startled him first was the action of Poritol, who stepped back to the wall, his jaw dropping, his face a picture of embarrassment and fright. Alcatrante and the stranger showed amazement.

For a moment they stood thus in silence, and then from the door came a clear voice:

"What? You here, Mr. Alcatrante? And the Japanese minister?"

Orme almost sprang from his hiding place. The voice was the voice of the girl!

CHAPTER XI.

The Way Out.

The sound of the girl's voice brought the men in the room to life. Her words were shaded to a tone of fearless scorn which must have bitten deep, for Alcatrante and the Japanese

GET INSIDE

Your Friends and Neighbors in Rushville Will Show You How.

Rubbing the back won't cure backache.

A liniment may relieve, but can't cure.

Backache comes from the inside—from the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills get inside—they cure sick kidneys.

Here is Rushville proof that this is so:

Samuel A. Brown, 527 West First street, Rushville, Ind., says: "I cannot speak too highly of Doan's Kidney Pills, for I know from personal experience that they live up to the claims made for them. About three years ago I was suddenly taken with an attack of headache and it steadily grew worse. I could hardly raise my foot from the ground and if I stopped it really seemed as if my back was going to break. When someone advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, I did so and I was certainly surprised by their promptness in relieving me. In three days I was free from backache and felt better in every way. Since then I have procured Doan's Kidney Pills at F. B. Johnson & Co.'s Drug Store and have seldom been without a supply in the house. Doan's Kidney Pills are worthy of the highest praise."

AN EASY AND HARMLESS WAY TO DARKEN THE HAIR.

Who does not know of the value of sage and sulphur for keeping the hair dark, soft, glossy and in good condition? As a matter of fact, sulphur is a natural element of hair, and a deficiency of it in the hair is held by many scalp specialists to be connected with loss of color and vitality of the hair. Unquestionably, there is no better remedy for hair and scalp troubles, especially premature grayness, than sage and sulphur, if properly prepared. The Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, put up an ideal preparation of this kind, called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. It is sold by all leading druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or is sent direct by the manufacturers upon receipt of price.

minister looked like schoolboys caught in wrong-doing. The South American gnawed at his lip; the Japanese looked at the floor, and Orme now realized that the manner which had seemed so indicative of a masterful personality was the manner which springs from power—the manner that is built upon the assurance of a tremendous backing.

The tension was broken by Poritol. The little man's dismay suddenly gave way to an eager and voluble excitement, and he rushed across the room, exclaiming: "Oh, my dear miss—"

"No names," commanded Alcatrante, harshly, turning to his subordinate.

"My dear young lady," continued Poritol breathlessly, "I am the victim of your misunderstanding. You will permit me to explain."

She answered with an even, cutting edge in her voice: "You cannot explain, Mr. Poritol."

"But—" he began, blind to her meaning.

"I do not care to hear you," she said; and Poritol slunk back to his former position. From his face it was clear that he had no desire except to get away.

Meantime Alcatrante aroused himself. "My friend here"—he indicated the Japanese—"and myself are here on business which concerns our two nations. Your appearance, I presume, is due to a desire to engage the professional services of Mr. Arima. Or perhaps you were trying to find the fortune teller upstairs." He barely repressed his sneer.

The girl did not answer. She remained by the door, and but for the attitudes of the others Orme would not have known but that she had gone. As it was, he could read in their bearing the disconcerting effects of her continued disdain.

The Japanese spoke. "Will you enter, miss, or shall we direct you on your way? Arima will come out and talk with you, if you so wish."

Still no answer. To Orme, in his hiding, there was something uncanny in her failure to respond. But he could picture her—Truth, calm in the presence of subterfuge.

"Will you not state your desire?" Again the Japanese. He was smiling now, with the false politeness of his race.

And then she spoke: "That envelope on the floor was stolen from my father's home. It bears my father's name."

Before Alcatrante could stop him, little Poritol, with some vague hope of making amends, had snatched up the torn envelope and taken it to her. He returned to the range of Orme's vision with an air of virtuous importance.

"The contents," said the girl—"where are the papers?"

Alcatrante and the Japanese looked at each other. It was as if they said, "In view of our failure we might as well make a clean breast of it." But Alcatrante was too cunning to take the initiative in confession. He left that to the Japanese, who spoke unhesitatingly.

"The only papers in the envelope were these." He picked up the torn prospectuses from the floor and held them extended in his hand. "Our surprise is as great as yours."

"Do you expect me to believe that?" "Whether you believe it or not, my dear young lady, it is true."

There was a moment of silence, then the Japanese continued: "We have reason to think that the envelope was for a time last night in the possession of an American, and that he substituted these circulars for whatever the envelope may have held."

Orme's impulse to declare himself was almost irresistible. A man whose instincts were less cautious would have thrown the table over and ranged himself beside the girl. Orme was not fearful, but he knew that the chances of a successful outcome would be lessened by exposure. Even if he and the girl got safely from the room, there would be a pursuit, and the risk of losing the papers would be great.

As for the girl, she clearly was in no danger. These men would not harm her.

But would the assertion of the Japanese lead her to doubt Orme? Would she believe that he had actually recovered the papers the night before and kept them for his own purposes? He remembered that he had given her only the scantiest account of his adventure at the tree, for he had wished to spare her the details of an incident that meant her disappointment as well as his own. She might now readily attribute his reticence to a desire to conceal something.

And then came her voice. Her first words brought a glow to Orme's heart: "I know that you are mistaken. No American has those papers." Orme breathed his relief. Then she added the dubious word—"Unless—"

So she did doubt him after all. Well, he could not blame her. The scene in the room—the frankness of the Japanese, which could only be attributed to discomfiture; the empty envelope; the torn prospectuses on the floor, all these conditions pointed to the truth of the explanation she had heard.

MILLION DOLLAR BLAZE IN BOSTON

Fire Fighters Called From Neighboring Towns.

STRONG WEST WIND BLOWING

Two Acres of Property Along the Lumber Wharves Was Laid Waste, Making One of the Most Spectacular Fires That City Has Had in Recent Years—Thirteen Neighboring Towns
Responded With Calls For Aid.

Boston, Aug. 10.—Starting at Dover and Albany streets, a fire swept up Albany street on both sides as far as Randolph street playground a few minutes after 6 o'clock last night, and before midnight more than two acres of property were laid waste and a damage of more than a million dollars done.
Twelve buildings were destroyed and twice that number damaged by the fire. Six alarms brought out all the apparatus in the city, and in response to calls for aid, engines and help came from thirteen cities and towns surrounding Boston.

When the fire started a west wind was blowing that sent blazing embers a quarter of a mile away from the Blacker & Shepard company's wharf, where it began. The fire crossed Dover and Albany streets on both corners within five minutes.

The firemen arrived to find a fierce blaze eating its way through the immense piles of lumber along the wharf.
The entire 100,000 square feet of ground was a blazing mass.

The Blacker & Shepard company occupied the major portion of the burned areas, though the American Coal company and the Downs Lumber company had a small part of it.

Sixty people were driven from small tenements, and by order of Mayor Fitzgerald the public baths on Dover street were thrown open for their shelter.
Over 1,000 firemen were kept busy for hours.

While the general alarm fire in the south end was at its height the five-story brick building at 55-59 High street burned and the damage is estimated at more than $75,000.

At Home in Bed on Night of Crime.
Lafayette, Ind., Aug. 10.—After examining four witnesses Judge Field dismissed the case against William Ashby, accused of killing Samuel Waddell on the night of March 19. Mrs.
Ashby testified that on the night of the fire her husband went to bed at 10:30 o'clock. Cecil Funkhouser, the state's witness, admitted that he had given false evidence before the grand jury in testifying as to the time Ashby returned home on the night of the fire.

MINERS DUE TO CREATE RUMPUS

Coming Convention Likely to Be Scene of Trouble.

ILLINOIS TO TAKE ACTIVE PART

Number of Delegates That Have Sent in Credentials From That State Indicate That Illinois Miners Expect to Make Themselves Felt in the Convention That Will Be Called to Order at Indianapolis Tomorrow.

Indianapolis, Aug. 10.—That the Illinois miners are very much interested in the special convention of the United Mine Workers that will open in this city tomorrow is shown by the number of credentials that are being received from that state at international headquarters in this city. It is believed from present indications that Illinois delegates will form about two-fifths of the entire number of delegates, but as credentials may be received up to the time of the convention, this ratio may be changed.

None of the other states seems to be showing the same interest as Illinois.
Ohio will apparently be well represented, but not nearly so well, numerically, as Illinois. The number of Illinois men expected is taken as an indication that Illinois is determined to make itself felt. Because of the strike in that state the miners would naturally be interested in the convention, and this interest is undoubtedly accentuated by the friction between T. L. Lewis, international president of the miners, and John Walker, president of the Illinois miners, and other Illinois officials.
Judging from present appearances the Illinois miners may make themselves much felt during the convention when the expected strife between the Lewis and Walker followers develops. About 1,000 delegates are expected to attend the convention.

CHILD'S AWFUL FATE

Pinned Beneath Wreck of Automobile,
It Burned to Death.

Goodland, Ind., Aug. 10.—The three-year-old daughter of Mrs. Thomas Fry of Goodland was burned to death in an automobile accident. William Egan, in company with Mrs. Egan and two children, one being the Fry child and the other a seven-month-old baby, left Goodland for a ride. When some distance out the machine ran into a ditch and was overturned, the older child being caught beneath it. The gasoline tank sprang a leak, flames were started and the car was destroyed. All efforts to rescue the child were in vain.

THIS JAIL EASY

For the Third Time Liquor Thieves Break Open Linton Bastille.

Linton, Ind., Aug. 10.—Finding Linton unable to protect its jail from burglars, Mayor Pennington has ordered that in future all liquor taken in raids must be emptied into the gutter at once. For the third time in about a month, the jail was broken into and twelve barrels of bottled beer, confiscated after a recent blind tiger raid, were stolen.

The locks and bolts were sawed from the door to allow the burglars to enter. Despairing of keeping liquor anywhere under lock and key, the sheriff will henceforth destroy it.

AUTO WENT "DEAD"

Wealthy Indiana Farmer Killed
Crossing by Trolley Cars.

Newcastle, Ind., Aug. 10.—Perry Engle, aged fifty, a wealthy farmer, whose home is south of this city, was instantly killed by a T. H. I. & E. traction car. As he approached a grade crossing, four miles south of here, the engine of his automobile went "dead" and the machine came to a standstill directly on the interurban tracks. The car could not be stopped in time to prevent the accident. The automobile was demolished, the car badly damaged and Engle was fatally crushed in the wreckage.

Suicide of Octogenarian.

Lebanon, Ind., Aug. 10.—Thomas Garner, aged eighty-one, living five miles southwest of the city, hanged himself in a woodshed adjoining the house. He had often stated that he would be better off dead.

GREAT SPECTACLE PLEASES CHICAGO

Knights Templar Parade Was a Fine Sight.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—Five hundred thousand persons watched the 45,000 Knights Templar march yesterday in the parade of the thirty-first triennial conclave of the organization, which presented the greatest spectacle of pageantry that Chicago has seen in more than seventeen years. For several hours half a million men, women and children pushed and jostled and fought each other to hold their places along the line of the parade. The long wait for the arrival of the first division failed to discourage the crowd, although the intense heat and the sultri-ness overcame fifteen persons and the hospital corps was in frequent demand.
In spite of the crowd, however, only one fatality was reported throughout the day. Hermann Gossman, a member of Apollo commandery No. 1 of Illinois, was fatally injured by a State street car in front of the Palmer House as he was attempting to cross that street. He died just before an ambulance reached him.

TALKING THINGS OVER

Pinchot and Garfield Visit the Colonel at the Hill.

Oyster Bay, Aug. 10.—Colonel Roosevelt conferred with Gifford Pinchot and James Rudolph Garfield this morning. The two took lunch at the Hill and will remain until evening. A great deal of interest attaches to this meeting of Garfield, Pinchot and Roosevelt. Pinchot has just returned from a stumping tour of California, taking up the cause of the insurgents.
Garfield, the defeated candidate for the gubernatorial nomination in Ohio, had many things to tell the colonel concerning affairs in the Buckeye state. Mr. Roosevelt is none too sanguine over the situation out there.

IN FEARFUL PLIGHT

Farmer Rolled Beneath Mower Drawn by Runaway Horses.

Lafayette, Ind., Aug. 10.—Alva Buck was badly mangled on the Boyer farm, four miles east of Pine Village. He was cutting grass when the team attached to the mower became frightened and ran away. Buck fell from his seat and under the machine. The knives came in contact with his body, one arm being completely severed and the other mangled to such an extent that amputation will be necessary.
One leg was broken and he received many cuts and bruises. He will probably die.

Seized Baby and Left.

El Paso, Tex., Aug. 10.—Frenzied with grief because his wife had told him to leave forever because of his alleged spendthrift habits, and he had just received a telegram from Columbus, O., bearing the news of his father's sudden death, R. E. Hall of Columbus, Cincinnati, New York and El Paso, seized their baby daughter from the wife's arms and ran off with her. He has not been apprehended, but the frantic wife says he cannot go far, because he has no money.

Two Young Men Killed.

Danville, Ind., Aug. 10.—The bodies of two well-dressed young men were found between the double tracks of the Big Four railroad two miles west of Hadley. They had been struck by a westbound train and probably instantly killed. One of the victims carried a card identifying him as Ralph Mc-Neil of Vincennes.

Indians Will Testify.

The congressional committee investigating Senator Gore's charges of an attempt to bribe him, has arrived at McAlester, Okla. The session will probably continue three days. A number of prominent Indians are in the city and some of these will be called as witnesses.

GLENWOOD MAN MADE PRESIDENT

Thomas A. Reed is Elected Highest Official at State Meeting of P. O. S. of A.

CRAWFORDSVILLE NEXT YEAR

Drill Team From "Athens" of Indiana Wins Honors Over Two Other Contestants.

The twentieth annual State meeting of the Patriotic Sons of America is now a matter of history and Glenwood has settled back to the regular order of things after entertaining their guests from all parts of the United States for a night and a day. The meeting yesterday and the night before was pronounced by all of the visiting lodgemen as one of the best in recent years. Yesterday the State officers were nominated for the current year and the day was taken up with business sessions. The night previous the drill was held in which Crawfordsville Camp No. 9 won the prize by a very slight margin. The next State meeting will be held at Crawfordsville the second Tuesday in August, the eighth.

O. P. Everson of Crawfordsville, State president, presided at all of the meetings yesterday. After the regular business was transacted, the remainder of the day was spent in speech making. Willard Johnson of the camp at Jacksonville, Florida, made a short talk in which he gave some statistics from the southern lodges, showing their advancement and progress. He said that the lodge was fast growing in the southland and was doing a great work.

John S. Reader of Hamilton, Ohio, Camp No. 13, who served as national president of the order for two terms, 1877 to 1881, and who was also State president of the Buckeye order for a term, was present for the meeting yesterday. During the course of his remarks, he insisted on the singing of more patriotic songs as a means of instilling patriotism. While national president, Mr. Reader instituted two camps, one in Maine and one in California. Thomas Rice of the Crawfordsville camp recited an ode to the flag which was much enjoyed. T. C. Jarvis of the local camp made a short speech and was followed by several other short talks.

The business session was an interesting one, the statistics showing that much work was done in the State during the year which just closed. The report showed that one new camp had been installed and that another was to be placed on the list after the twenty-first of this month. It also showed that thirty-eight members had been added to the various camps over the State in the past year.

The meeting was called to order yesterday morning at ten o'clock with O. P. Everson presiding. After the report of the standing committees, which showed a great increase in the work, were heard, new committees were appointed. The following State officers for the ensuing year were nominated and elected: Thomas A. Reed of Glenwood Camp 2, president; J. K. Greenwood of Indianapolis Camp 33, vice-president; T. C. Jarvis of Rushville Camp 9, master of forms; Sam D. Symmes, Crawfordsville Camp 6, secretary; W. J. Mayer, Crawfordsville Camp 6, assistant secretary; Harry R. Mitchell, Indianapolis Camp 33, treasurer; Elmer Scholl, Lyons Station Camp 4, conductor; J. B. Gore, Indianapolis Camp 12, inspector; S. F. Cutter, Indianapolis Camp 12, guard; Thomas Felts, chaplain, and Joe E. Fisher, Crawfordsville Camp 6, trustee for three years.

The drill on Monday night was one of the interesting sessions of the State meeting. The coveted honor was won by the team from Crawfordsville Camp 6 by a very slight margin. The other contestants were a team from the local camp and one from the Indianapolis Camp 33. The Rushville team made a good showing.

PLANNING TO HOLD MOORE REUNION

Descendants of Daniel Moore Will Gather at Indianapolis on Wednesday, August 17.

FEW MEMBERS IN THIS COUNTY

Moore from all parts of Indiana, descendants of Daniel Moore, will gather at the Garfield Park in Indianapolis, August 17, for the eighth annual reunion of the family, which claims to be the largest in the State. There are eleven grandchildren, 47 great-grandchildren, 119 great-great-grandchildren, and 22 great-great-great-grandchildren. One branch of the family lives in Missouri.

The original Daniel Moore was born in Kentucky in 1786, and with his wife, Lucy, came to Indiana in 1835. They bought a farm nine miles southeast of what was then the straggling town of Indianapolis. This farm is still in the possession of the family.

POLICE ANSWER BURGLAR CALL

Called to Home of Louis Neutzenhelzer Last Night During the Chautauqua Program.

ALLEGED ROBBER ESCAPED

About eight o'clock last night, while most of the people in the central residence portion of the city were attending the chautauqua, the police had a burglar call to the home of Louis Neutzenhelzer in North Morgan street. Only one member of the family was at home at the time that it is believed that robbers entered the house. She heard a noise in the front room upstairs, caused by a man closing a door and walking across the room. Frightened by the belief that there was a man in the house, she ran to a neighbor's and called the police at the chautauqua grounds. When Policeman Wolters arrived no trace of the burglar could be found. At least five minutes elapsed when the marauder had time to escape easily. The officer found the back door open although members of the family declare that they had locked it earlier in the evening. Nothing in the house was disturbed.

WANT ADS BRING RESULTS

EVEN WINS OVER THE SMALL BOYS

Lincoln J. McConnell With His "Dead Lions" Scores a Complete Victory at Chautauqua.

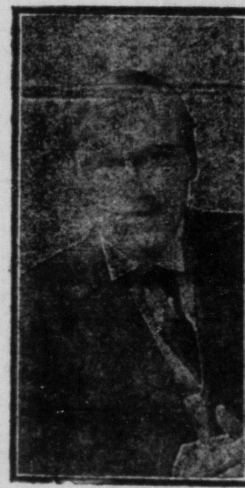

REGRET TO SEE HIM DEPART

Powerful in Pathos and Excruciatingly Funny he Captivates With His Inimitable Eloquence.

"Well, I've got to stop and catch a train, said Lincoln J. McConnell near the close of his lecture on "Dead Lions" at the chautauqua last night.

"No, y'o aint," said a small boy on the front row, who had been one of the most interested listeners during the eloquent discourse.

"Yes, I'm sorry, my boy, but I have to go?" replied Mr. McConnell, and thus closed the incident which only showed how deeply rooted the big brawny man from Kansas City was in the hearts and minds of his audience, even down to the small boys who gather on the front row and who generally are the bane of most popular lecturers by their mischievous actions.

LINCOLN J. McCONNELL.

Eloquent, realistic, powerful in pathos, excruciatingly funny, king of face contortionists and actor of rare ability, Lincoln J. McConnell stands out prominently as the most popular man who ever graced the platform in all of the seven annual sessions of the Rush county chautauqua. Wit is his vantage point from which he makes his victories on the lecture platform and again he can be serious and give to the audience his view of life in a very realistic manner.

Link McConnell's face is his biggest asset, although his immense body, seemingly ponderous, but again finely shaped, adds much to assist him in his stock and trade. His large and expressive face, when set off by a large mouth and a full set of beautiful and large white teeth, is handsome. He depended on his facial flexibility and agility of his body to illustrate the points to his many witty stories and he did not find them unreliable. One instant his audience, whom he captivated with his first few words by his strong, but well modulated voice was in an uproar and again they were compelled to give his statements some serious thought by the sheer force of the lecturer.

The lecture on "Dead Lions," by Mr. McConnell was based on the Bible story of Sampson, who killed the agile young lion to accomplish his purpose. Mr. McConnell applied the story to everyday life and referred to it as the basis for his lecture all during the evening. He intended to illustrate the facts that the sweets of life, illustrated by the honey which Sampson obtained, could not be had without an effort. Mr. McConnell gave three reasons why a man would not gain success in this world, that is if he had those attributes, laziness, cowardice and pessimism.

The lecture was interspersed by short stories that could be told only by Mr. McConnell in his inimitable manner. He had a number of humorous tales, all of them very realistic, which brought more forcibly to his hearers the point which he intended to bring out. He said that a life without a purpose was absolutely hopeless and that a man with the desire must also have ambition to put his thoughts into action. Mr. McConnell said great men attained success not through luck, but by preparation. They are prepared for the emergency when it comes.

The lecturer believed that laziness and cowardice are two of the greatest reasons for the failures in everyday life. He said that a physical coward was in a number of cases a moral coward also, and he had a number of stories in connection with cowardice, which kept the audience convulsed with laughter. He contended that many parents make cowards of their children. Mr. McConnell took occasion to pay tribute to Theodore Roosevelt, whom he said stood high in the hearts of the American people today because he was not seemingly afraid of anything.

The closing of the lecture by McConnell was one of the most impressive incidents which ever took place at the chautauqua. When he was here at a Men's Big Meeting last winter, Mr. McConnell taught the men a short song, "I Am Included" which they sang over and over for an hour. When the lecturer left the platform last night, the audience at the instigation of the platform leader took up the tune and sang it several times. They gave him the chautauqua salute and presented a sea of fluttering handkerchiefs to the popular platform man as he hastened away to catch the train to go to Iowa where he will arrive tonight for a lecture. The strains of "I Am Included" followed him as he sped away in an automobile for the railway station.

ST. PAUL MAN PRESIDENT

John L. Jackson to Preside at Fourth Class Postmasters Meeting.

Postmaster John L. Jackson of St. Paul will preside at a meeting of the State association of fourth class postmasters to be held in Indianapolis on August 24-25. Mr. Jackson is the president of the organization, which is designated as a school of instruction for the postmasters of the smaller towns and to improve the service by exchange of information and personal opinions. Attendance at the meeting is not compulsory, but a majority of the 4,000 fourth class officials in the State are expected to be present.
